2022 Paper Computer Game

Introduction: First read the introduction screen, and then you can read this. You play as a Spotted Lanternfly, and for generations humans have stomped your kind, who feel powerless against their evil wrath at the enjoyment they get just squishing the life out of innocent Lanternflies.

Your clan has largely escaped this conflict so you've been ignorant of the true horrors of it – until now! Will you turn and fight, or cower in the shadows of the humans' feet?

Pg#1: you and all your spotted lanternfly buddies are out enjoying the nice pleasant day, when all of a sudden humans arrive and start stomping on you!

- As the player you will want to escape, but also save your friends from being stomped, so you can first save the one right under the human's shadow to the right by flying over quickly, and then the one to the left by getting him out as fast as you can. (leave it up to the PCG master to decide what formula of who to save and when will work)
- Unfortunately, although you save most of your friends, the spotted lanternfly at the top middle of the screen that you had a crush on will sadly get killed no matter what you try. (even if you save game and try to save her, she will always be stomped first)
- This makes you very angry, and you have had it with the humans!!!

Pg#2: You then retreat to (pg #2) to the sacred pool to cool off, but you notice that it has turned blood red due to many other spotted lanternflies being killed, and it appears to all be flowing into the pool.

- In your moment of weakness you decide to dive into the pool, and then... things start to change.

- Water mixes with blood, and you try to go up for air, but all you can squeeze out of your throat is POWER!.....
- Then everything goes black, and you see a vision. You see Troktleer!! The God of the Spotted Lanternflies. His wings spread out infinitely throughout the cosmos, and he speaks to you and says “I feel the anger in your heart, and I shall grant you a power no creature of our size has ever gained!”
- You wake up and go to the next screen

Pg#3: You come out of the pool with your new power coursing through your body. (you gained the power of the Red Lantern, so you now have the ability to create anything such as a giant red sword, or rope.)

- You see a giant foot from a human about to stomp you, and you can not take it anymore! You now can use your power to create something such as a big fist to push the foot away or a sword to kill the human. (There are many different things you can do, but its up to the PCG master to see what works). If you try to escape it wont work, so you must activate your power.

Pg#4: Then on the next screen you see more humans just stomping more of your kind!

- You now have the power to turn the tables, so you as the player can now stomp the humans if you wish. It is up to the player on what they do, but they must defeat the Humans & save the Lanternflies they're stomping! When they defeat the humans - either by stomping or another method - then turn to the next page.

Pg#5: If you chose any method of killing the humans, in all your anger you accidentally killed a baby spotted lantern fly, and it was your fault. You now learn that with so much power comes great loss. You now have a decision to make as the player, do you carry on stomping humans at the cost of possibly stomping your own, or do you allow nature to resume its natural balance and do nothing.....

Pg#6: This is the Dark Decree of the Spotted Lanternfly. This does not mean too much other than it was written by someone else of your species.
